QUESTION

A company has an existing generic authorisation which is authorised for use in one target species. They now want to add another target species, but the authorisation for the reference product does not include this species in any Member State.

Can the company gain the new species by way of an extension to the existing generic authorisation, if they generate the relevant data themselves?

ANSWER

Yes, the (food producing) target species can be applied for by way of an extension application, with the company's own supportive data.
